Scope

There is a vast collection of cases dealing with the differing Georgia DUI Statutes and their interpretations. Additionally, there is an abundant of cases involving what actions a law enforcement officer may take and the level of evidence required or the evidence's admissibility. The material I have selected is intended to introduce a broad spectrum of the most common issues found within differing case fact patterns. With a few exceptions, I have also limited the material to cases decided within the last several years, specifically eyeing those published in 2011. I have also decided to add a set of Federal Regulations for the research enthusiast who questions where and why Georgia may have included certain elements within its own statutes.

Purpose

The purpose of this research is to introduce to the novice attorney unfamiliar with Georgia DUI laws a broad overview of Georgia's DUI Statutes and their applications through case law. As each case is differentiated by it's own unique fact pattern, the information included is meant only to be a starting place and should not be viewed as the ending point of any specific fact pattern research.

About the Author

Christopher Ward is a third-year law student at Georgia State University College of Law. Chris wrote this web research guide for Professor Johnson's Advanced Legal Research Class in the Fall 2011 semester.

Disclaimer

The material contained in this research guide was developed for the Fall semester of 2011 academic requirement. It is intended to provide a broad overview of the Georgia's DUI laws, it does not constitute legal advice. This material was prepared during the ending quarter of 2011 and, as State statutes are amended and legal case rules and interpretations are updated and changed, it should be checked to ensure they are still good law. The materials presented do not address all issues that can and will arise, therefore, the researcher should read the full text of the resources cited.

Bibliographies on this Web site were prepared for educational purposes by law students as part of Nancy P. Johnson's Advanced Legal Research course. The Law Library does not guarantee the accuracy, completeness, or usefulness of any information provided. Thorough legal research requires a researcher to update materials from date of publication; please note the semester and year the bibliography was prepared.

General Comment on Georgia Cases

Please note the issues included within the Georgia Case section is not an exhaustive list of issues encountered in a prosecution or defense of a DUI. The grouping reflect the 2011 decisions and issues argued. For the most part, the issues decided are based on settle law and the cases reflect the application of those laws on differing fact patterns. The basis for this "settled" law can be analyzed by following the citations illustrated within the decision.

Georgia Case Law

"in custody"/Miranda

DiMauro v. State, 714 S.E.2d 105 (Ga. App. 2011)

Waiting approximately 20 minutes for an HGN qualified officer is not "in custody" for Miranda purposes.

Waters v. State, 701 S.E.2d 550 (Ga. App. 2010)

Miranda warnings are only required after being taken into custody. A traffic stop deprives motorist of his "freedom of action" but does not trigger Miranda warning requirements.

Harper v. State, 534 S.E.2d 157 (Ga. App. 2000)

"The test for "in custody" during a traffic stop is if a reasonable person in the suspect's position thought detention would not be temporary."

Hale v. State, 714 S.E.2d 19 (Ga. App. 2011)

Field sobriety test given while suspect is not "in custody" and are not "testimonial or communicative" in nature do not invoke Miranda warnings concerning rights against self-incrimination.

When the subjective intent of the police officer to arrest is conveyed, the suspect is "in custody."

While "in custody" yet prior to Miranda warning, if a suspect request a field test, such test results are admissible.

The State administered Intoxilyzer 5000 breath test given at the police station was properly excluded at trial because the State never allowed Hale to obtain an independent blood test he had requested.

During a preliminary instruction to the jury, the judge mention the excluded test. The comment is harmless as viewed in the "context of the trial as a whole."

Request for Independent Test

State v. Davis, 711 S.E.2d 76 (Ga. App. 2011)

Suspect requested an independent blood test. Purse was left in the car and suspect was not afforded an opportunity to have it returned or given other opportunities to make arrangements to pay for test therefore, reasonable efforts to accommodate the request were not made.

Ritter v. State, 703 S.E.2d 8 (Ga. App. 2010)

Factors to be considered in determining whether a reasonable effort to accommodate the suspect who seeks an independent blood test explained.

State v. Metzger, 692 S.E.2d 687 (Ga. App. 2010)

Whether the officer made a reasonable effort depends on the local circumstances.

Erroneous Jury Charge

Ruiz v. State, 686 S.E.2d 253 (Ga. 2009)

An erroneous jury charge is "considered in the context of the entire jury charge and trial record..." and "... is not reversible unless it causes harm."

Intoxilyzer 5000

Miller v. State, 706 S.E.2d 94 (Ga. App. 2011)

Fact pattern contesting the sufficiency of the evidence and erroneous reading of the Intoxilyze 5000.

State v. Padidham, 714 S.E.2d 657 (Ga. App. 2011)

Intoxilyzer 5000 Breath Test: administrative, procedural, and clerical steps performed in conducting a test are not part of the required approved method therefore, such issues go to the weight not the admissibility.

Commercial Vehicle

Tunali v. State, No. A11A1158, 2011 WL4552410 (Ga. App. Oct. 4, 2011)

Reasonable, articulable suspicion of criminal activity required to initiate a traffic stop.

Judicial notice of the rules adopted by the Georgia Public Service Commission issued by the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration permitting certain DPS officers to stop commercial vehicles and conduct safety inspections. An F250 displaying a hazardous materials placard qualifies as a commercial vehicle.

40-6-391(a)(6) Unconstitutional

Love v. State, 517 S.E.2d 53 (Ga. 1999)

Held OCGA §40-6-391(a)(6) is unconstitutional on equal protection grounds.

Sandlin v. State, 707 S.E.2d 378 (Ga. App. 2011)

Held that Love v. State, 271 Ga. 398 (1999), does not require a showing that a suspect is legally entitled to use a controlled substance before the unconstitutionality of OCGA §40-6-391(a)(6) attaches.

Evidentiary Issues

Steele v. State, 703 S.E.2d 5 (Ga. App. 2010)

Includes requirements for introduction of similar transaction evidence.

Ayiteyfo v. State, 707 S.E.2d 186 (Ga. App. 2011)

Fact pattern of other incidents which were sufficiently similar to the incident at issue were allowed admittance of similar transaction evidence.

Massey v. State, 711 S.E.2d 65 (Ga. App. 2011)

Fact pattern for the admissibility of similar transaction evidence to show bent of mind and course of conduct.

Gamble v. State, 641 S.E.2d 556 (Ga. App. 2007)

Reviewing court does not re-weigh evidence or credibility, but only to determine if sufficient evidence for a rational trier of fact to find the accused guilty.

Harris v. State, 706 S.E.2d 702 (Ga. App. 2011)

Fact pattern for sufficiency of evidence.

Bacallao v. State, 705 S.E.2d 307 (Ga. App. 2011)

Describes the three types of police-citizen encounters. Gives fact pattern for a tier one encounter.

Shy v. Jackson, 709 S.E.2d 869 (Ga. App. 2011)

A discussion on the allowable uses and limits of similar transaction evidence. Case includes jury charges on the use of similar transaction evidence and the proper use by juries of such evidence.

Out of State Witness

Davenport v. State, 711 S.E.2d 699 (Ga. 2011)

Defines the statutory scheme requesting an out of state witness.

Roadblock

Owens v. State, 707 S.E.2d 584 (Ga. App. 2011)

Procedural requirements for a legal roadblock and a fact pattern for sufficiency.

Blood Test Evidence

Stubblefield v. State, 690 S.E.2d 892 (Ga. App. 2011)

Blood test taken at hospital the night of arrest for a diabetes condition was admitted over the refusal of the suspect to take the state administered test.

Limited Right for State Appeal

State v. Outen, No. S10G1596, 2011 WL2536102 (Ga. June 27, 2011)

The State has a very limited direct appeal right under OCGA § 5-7-1 and 5-7-2. When the trial court dismisses less than all counts of an indictment, such actions are not final.

Changes the interpretation of State v. Tuzman, 145 Ga.App. 481 (1978), that interpreted a dismissal of a count within a multi-count indictment as being final.

United State Supreme Court Cases

United States Supreme Court Cases

Bullcoming v. New Mexico, 131 S.Ct. 2705 (2011)

Defendant has a right to confront analyst who certified blood-alcohol analysis report and the report is testimonial within the meaning of the Confrontation clause.

Padilla v. Kentucky, 130 S.Ct. 1474 (2010)

counsel engaged in deficient performance by failing to advise defendant that his plea of guilty made him subject to automatic deportation. The Strickland ineffective assistance test includes alleged omissions by counsel.

Virginia v. Harris, 130 S.Ct. 10 (2009) writ of cert denied.

An interesting read, albeit not the law, concerning Fourth Amendment reasonable suspicion. The question poised in the writ was whether additional corroboration is needed when the police are given an anonymous tip concerning an unsafe driver.

Leocal v. Ashcroft, 543 U.S. 1 (2004)

Driving under the influence and causing bodily injury is not a "crime of violence" and therefore, not an "aggravated felony" warranting deportation.

Illinois v. Lidster, 540 U.S. 419 (2004)

Brief stops of motorists at highway checkpoint at which police sought information about recent fatal hit-and-run accident on that highway were not presumptively invalid under the Fourth Amendment and the stop of motorist who was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol after he arrived at the stop did not violate his Fourth Amendment rights.

Atwater v. City of Lago Vista, 532 U.S. 318 (2001)

The Fourth Amendment does not forbid a warrantless arrest for a minor criminal offense, such as a misdemeanor seatbelt violation punishable only by a fine.

City of Indianapolis v. Edmond, 531 U.S. 32 (2000)

A city's vehicle checkpoint program whose primary purpose is indistinguishable from the general interest in crime control violates the Fourth Amendment. Contrast with Michigan Department of State Police v. Sitz, 496 U.S. 444 (1990) allowing sobriety checkpoints.

United States v. Nachtigal, 507 U.S. 1 (1993)

Driving under the influence of alcohol in national park was "petty offense" to which constitutional right to jury trial did not apply.

Pennsylvania v. Muniz, 110 S.Ct. 2638 (1990)

Involves a person arrested but not given miranda warning: slurred speech is nontestimonial and admissible, answers to the question "what date is your sixth birthday on" is testimonial and properly excluded, and comments in response to instruction, deemed not words of action, for a sobriety test were voluntary and admissible.

Michigan Department of State Police v. Sitz, 496 U.S. 444 (1990)

Highway sobriety checkpoint is consistent with the Fourth Amendment. The case lays out the elements are deemed a checkpoint consistent.

Blanton v. City of North Las Vegas, Nevada, 489 U.S. 538 (1989)

Jury trial not required for "petty offenses." A petty offense is defined as a prison term of six months or less. A Sixth Amendment issue argument.

Pennsylvania v. Bruder, 488 U.S. 9 (1988)

Ordinary traffic stop did not involve custody for purposes of Miranda rule therefore, statements driver made during roadside questioning were admissible.

Welsh v. Wisconsin, 466 U.S. 740 (1984)

A warrantless, nighttime entry of petitioner's home to arrest him for a civil, nonjailable traffic offense, was prohibited by the special protection afforded the individual in his home by the Fourth Amendment. Wisconsin Law first offense statute stated that first offense for driving a motor vehicle while under the influence was a noncriminal violation subject to a $200 fine.

South Dakota v. Neville, 459 U.S. 553 (1983)

Held the admission into evidence of a defendant's refusal to submit to a blood-alcohol test does not offend the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Mackey v. Montrym, 443 U.S. 1 (1979)

A statute which mandated suspension of a driver's license because of a licensee's refusal to take a breath-analysis test upon arrest for driving while under the influence of alcohol did not violate the due process clause.

Schmerber v. State of California, 384 U.S. 757 (1966)

A State can force a defendant to submit to a blood-alcohol test without violating the defendant's Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Books

William C Head & Frank T. Gomez, The Georgia DUI Trial Practice Manual, (West, 2011 ed.)

There are numerous books covering all aspects of a Georgia DUI. I expect some to be excellent and informative while others 'not so good.' I know some are written by experienced trial litigators while others seem to be written by individuals who believe a DUI conviction makes them an expert on the subject.

I have perused through a number of books on the subject dealing with the history of DUI to a comparative treatise on the differing governmental policies affecting DUI laws and I recommend this book.

The Georgia DUI Trial Practice Manual offers an excellent road map for the Georgia attorney. It covers the issues one might expect to find and many others one might not.
