History

The General Assembly's concern with issues related to driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol (DUI) continued during the 1992 session.¹ Conflicts arose between the Senate, which pressed for stricter DUI laws, and the House, which has historically been reticent to unduly toughen DUI laws for first-time offenders.² Public concern was raised by a series of articles on the issue published in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution which detailed the problem of habitual DUI offenders and highlighted incidents in which people had been convicted up to twenty-two times for driving under the influence of alcohol.³

SB 489

By far the most controversial DUI act that passed, SB 489 cleared the General Assembly in the final hours of the session.⁴ The Act provides for the administrative suspension of the driver's license of a driver who fails an alcohol test and who also has at least one conviction under Code section 40-6-391.⁵

A person involved in a "traffic accident resulting in serious injuries or fatalities"⁶ or arrested under Code section 40-6-391 impliedly consents to take a breath test or a blood test.⁷ A driver is subject to penalties under the Act if his blood alcohol reading is .10 grams or more, is .06 grams for a person under age eighteen, or is .04 grams for a person operating a commercial vehicle.⁸ Administrative license suspension only applies to a person with at least one conviction under

The article compiled traffic statistics over the past twenty-five years: 43 Georgians had 15 or more convictions for DUI; 665 had between 10 and 14 convictions; 16,817 had between 5 and 9 convictions; and 66,018 had between 3 and 4 convictions for DUI. Id. The Atlanta Journal-Constitution ran a seven-part series from Nov. 3 to Nov. 10, 1991 entitled "Georgia's DUI Scandal," authored by Adam Gelb and Katie Long.

4. SB 489 was part of Governor Zell Miller's legislative agenda and was sponsored by Sens. Harill L. Dawkins (Senate District 45), Mark Taylor (Senate District 12), and Pete Robinson (Senate District 16). These three Senators also sponsored SB 487.

SB 489, as introduced, 1992 Ga. Gen. Assem. A Senate floor amendment then specified a "breath test and a blood test and may require a urine test." SB 489 (SFA), 1992 Ga. Gen. Assem. (emphasis added). A House floor substitute changed the designated test to "a breath test or a blood test and may require a urine test." SB 489 (HFS), 1992 Ga. Gen. Assem. (emphasis added). This wording was adopted in the Act. O.C.G.A. § 40-5-67.1(c) (Supp. 1992). The language requiring both a breath test and a blood test was a typographical error and, regardless, would have been too expensive to implement. Code section 40-6-391 or whose license has previously been administratively suspended.⁹

If a driver subject to an administrative license suspension tests positive for the applicable alcohol level, the law enforcement officer will then serve notice to the driver that his license will be suspended after the expiration of a twenty day temporary permit.¹⁰ If an officer fails to serve notice at the time of the test, the officer's department shall do so by regular mail addressed to the driver's last known address.¹¹ If the law enforcement officer issues a citation for DUI even though the driver's blood alcohol test does not reach the threshold amount for administrative suspension, or if administrative suspension is inapplicable because of the driver's record, the officer will issue a 180 day temporary permit.¹²

The Act provides that the first administrative suspension will be for three years.¹³ One hundred and twenty days after the expiration of the twenty day temporary period, a driver may seek a probationary license.¹⁴ A probationary license will be granted after proof of completion of a DUI Alcohol or Drug Use Risk Reduction Program and after payment of a $210 fee.¹⁵ A second or subsequent suspension within five years will result in a suspension of five years with a possibility of a probationary license in two years.¹⁶

The Act does provide for an appeal process. Drivers whose licenses are administratively suspended have a right to appeal to the Department of Public Safety within five days of the suspension.¹⁷ The appeal is waived if not requested within five days.¹⁸ Within thirty days from an appeal request, the Department must hold a recorded hearing pursuant to the Georgia Administrative Procedure Act.¹⁹ The issues on appeal are specific and limited in scope. Appealable issues include: whether the officer had reasonable grounds to believe that the person was in physical control of the moving motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or a controlled substance, and was lawfully placed under arrest; whether the person was involved in a motor vehicle accident or collision; whether the officer informed the driver of the driver's implied consent obligations and the consequences of failing to submit to the alcohol/drug test; whether the test values were sufficiently high to qualify for administrative suspension; and whether the operator was certified and the testing apparatus approved.²⁰ If a suspension is upheld, a driver has the right to a judicial review pursuant to the Georgia Administrative Procedure Act.²¹

The Act includes a House floor amendment²² which clarified the required chemical tests.²³ Code section 40-5-55 requires that the tests given pursuant to an arrest for a Code section 40-6-391 violation, or after a "traffic accident resulting in serious injuries or fatalities," shall include both an alcohol and a drug screen.²⁴ This inclusion was not meant to be a substantive change, but only a clarification.²⁵ Code section 40-6-391 prohibits driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.²⁶

Administrative suspension for first-time offenders was a very controversial subject during the session. As introduced, SB 489 provided for administrative suspension of a person's driver's license after all arrests—including arrests of first-time offenders—made under section 40-6-391.²⁷ The House Motor Vehicle Committee substitute also contained this provision.²⁸ The House floor substitute, however, deleted the provision calling for administrative suspension for first-time offenders.²⁹ Thus, the battle lines were drawn on a very emotional issue.³⁰

Both proponents and opponents of the bill relied on emotional as well as statistical arguments to support their positions. Proponents of administrative suspension cited to a study by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration which claimed that as many as sixty lives could be saved in the first year if administrative suspensions were instituted for all offenders.³¹ Supporters of first-time offender administrative suspensions pointed out that Georgia's lax DUI laws allowed almost $1.2 million in federal highway money and grants for law enforcement training to escape.³² Supporters also noted that laws in twenty-nine other states provide for such administrative suspensions.³³

Opponents argued that administrative suspensions would be unfair and would violate the spirit of due process. One member of the House criticized the first-time offender suspensions stating that "[e]verybody in America is entitled to one chance, I think. . . . You are taking this man's driver's license for being arrested."³⁴ Other opponents claimed that new laws passed last year to deal with the problem of DUI had not yet had enough time to work.³⁵

Some House members were concerned that a mere arrest for DUI and the resulting suspension could cause the loss of a job for the person arrested.³⁶ A House floor amendment was proposed to give judges the discretion to immediately issue a temporary license for employment purposes.³⁷ Proponents of administrative suspension responded that a person should have considered the possibility of having their license suspended before they decided to drink and drive.³⁸ This proposal was dropped in the Act's final form.³⁹

At one point, members of the House almost succeeded in restoring language in the bill to include first offenders. After a tie, however, the Speaker of the House cast the deciding vote against the inclusion of this language.⁴⁰ In a House-Senate conference committee, administrative suspensions for first time DUI offenders were again rejected.⁴¹

The aftermath of the Act's passage was just as rancorous. The Governor said he was disappointed and is prepared to introduce administrative suspensions for first time offenders next session because "we've got to get these drunk drivers off the highways."⁴² Referring to House amendments to SB 489, the legislative liaison for Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) stated: "Not only have they gutted what would have been a significant bill, they have created a monster."⁴³

It sends absolutely the wrong message and that is, it's still public policy in the state that Georgia is going to get tough on drunk driving—the second time around." Long, supra note 2.

SB 487

Like SB 489, SB 487 was also part of the Governor's legislative program for dealing with the problems of drunk driving.⁴⁴ As with SB 489, a series of newspaper articles helped to spur DUI reform.⁴⁵ Prior to the Act, a driver who was convicted three or more times for violations of Code section 40-5-54⁴⁶ and/or sections 40-6-391 to 40-6-395⁴⁷ was declared to be an habitual violator.⁴⁸ An "habitual violator" who was then convicted of driving on a revoked license within five years was to be fined at least $750 and/or imprisoned from one to five years.⁴⁹ The Act does not change this "habitual violator" designation.⁵⁰

The Act creates another, more limited, category of habitual violators.⁵¹ This limited category consists of drivers who are convicted three or more times of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs⁵² within five years.⁵³ Under this more limited definition, an "habitual violator," who is convicted of operating a motor vehicle under a revoked license will be guilty of the felony of habitual impaired driving.⁵⁴

An habitual violator may still apply for a probationary license after two years from the date of the loss of his license.⁵⁵ The Act added several new conditions for the issuance of a probationary license.⁵⁶

In the House, a floor amendment was added to SB 487⁵⁹ with little opposition⁶⁰ which creates an offense of "endangering a child by driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs."⁶¹ This offense is committed when a driver transports a child under the age of fourteen while in violation of Code section 40-6-391.⁶² The Act provides that the punishment for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs and the punishment for endangering a child by driving under the influence are not to merge.⁶³ The "endangering a child" offender will be punished under Code section 16-12-1⁶⁴ which punishes contributing to the delinquency, unruliness, or deprivation of a child.⁶⁵

HB 451

The Act adds subsection (g) to Code section 40-5-55 and defines the term "traffic accident which resulted in serious injuries or fatalities."⁶⁶ Code section 40-5-55 provides that a person operating a motor vehicle has given implied consent to a alcohol or drug screening test when arrested for a violation of Code section 40-6-391⁶⁷ or when the driver has been involved in a "traffic accident resulting in serious injuries or fatalities."⁶⁸ Although Code section 40-5-55 underwent substantial change because of SB 489, the substantive doctrine of implied consent remained unchanged.⁶⁹

SB 579

The Act amends Code section 40-5-86 and allows a driver to reduce the points against her license by attending a "DUI Alcohol or Drug Use Risk Reduction Program" regardless of the number of points she has.⁷⁴ The Act also changes prior language that called for a driver to complete an "approved basic alcohol or drug course" and now requires the driver to complete a DUI Alcohol or Drug Use Risk Reduction Program.⁷⁵ Previously, a driver had to accumulate eight points against her license before being allowed to reduce these points by participating in such a course.⁷⁶ The Act did not disturb the seven point reduction for taking a course but did provide that a driver could not reduce her total points to less than zero with either a DUI Alcohol or Drug Use Risk Reduction Program or a defensive driving course.⁷⁷

As introduced, SB 579 allowed a driver to take advantage of a point reducing course once every three years,⁷⁸ instead of the prior limit of once every ten years.⁷⁹ The Senate Judiciary Committee amended this provision to allow a course once every five years.⁸⁰ The House approved the five year amendment in the final version of the Act.⁸¹

The Act authorizes the Public Safety Commissioner to accept certifications issued by out-of-state defensive driving schools, DUI schools, and drug programs pursuant to Code section 40-5-83.⁸² Previously, the Department of Public Safety was required to enter into reciprocal agreements with the authorities of other states, military reservations, and other possessions of the United States before such certifications could be accepted.⁸³ With the passage of the Act, out-of-state programs approved by their respective state, military, or other authorities became acceptable substitutes.⁸⁴

The Act was introduced because of requests by the Department of Public Safety, constituent problems, and problems facing out-of-state non-residents.⁸⁵ The Department of Public Safety was unhappy with the increased paperwork that resulted from entering into the required reciprocity agreements.⁸⁶ In addition, the prior law caused out-of-state residents difficulty when Georgia courts required them to attend corrective courses.⁸⁷ Such non-residents might have to make special trips back into Georgia to attend a course.⁸⁸ Further, not requiring reciprocity agreements may encourage other states to accept Georgia-

SB 579 (HFA), 1992 Ga. Gen. Assem. This amendment failed. See O.C.G.A. § 40-5-86 (Supp. 1992). The ignition interlock bill, HB 1122, also failed to pass. certified programs.⁸⁹ Thus, the Act may be helpful to Georgia residents, especially those who live in perimeter areas of the state, who are required to take corrective driving courses in other states.⁹⁰

One of the bill's sponsor stated that this Act was not an attempt to lessen the impact of DUI laws but was only an attempt to make attendance at corrective driving courses easier.⁹¹ The intent is for people to get the information and instruction offered at these courses so that they can become better drivers.⁹² The Act passed the General Assembly without substitute or amendment.⁹³

In 1988, Georgia's Constitution was amended to provide for allocation of funds to compensate crime victims.⁹⁴ Enabling legislation created the Georgia Crime Victims Emergency Fund.⁹⁵ Prior to the passage of SB 524, the amount of money available to the fund was limited to money allocated by the General Assembly.⁹⁶ Those funds have totaled approximately $100,000.⁹⁷

The Act⁹⁸ imposes an additional penalty for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs⁹⁹ of $25 or 10 percent of the original fine.¹⁰⁰ The Act provides that the additional penalties are to be conveyed to the Crime Victims Emergency Fund for disbursement to innocent victims of crime.¹⁰¹ The Act also establishes a method for transferring funds from local courts to the Crime Victim's Compensation Board.¹⁰²

MADD asked one of the sponsors of SB 524 to introduce this bill.¹⁰³ With 60,000 DUI arrests yearly, this sponsor and MADD anticipate approximately $1.5 million a year will be made available to the Victims Fund.¹⁰⁴ Although this increase in funding will stem from DUI penalties, the sponsor emphasized that the money will be available for all crime victims.¹⁰⁵ SB 524 passed the General Assembly with no changes.¹⁰⁶

This is not done very often because everyone wants to do it and the result would be chaotic. However, because the Crime Victims Fund is not a new concept and because there is much support for compensating victims, this additional fee easily passed the General Assembly. Id.
